Little made a big hit in the parade of 7,000 members of the Junior Order United American Mechanics at Uniontown last night. The parade itself was a fitting opening to the state convention of the order. The South Connellsville Band, which headed the council, won an award of $25 for the second best

Magic Council members were dressed in white trousers, white shirts and white caps, and in front of the delegation was a little red school house carried on supports by members of the council. The officers carried a handsome American flag. The South Connellsville Band came forth with a novel feature by wearing electric lights in their hats.

The largest star in line was that carried by Dunbar Council No. 27. Measuring 20 by 40 feet the stars and stripes spread entirely over the street.

Annual reports submitted at the first business session of the convention yesterday showed that the membership in the state is 30,000, an increase of 3,000 over last year. Of particular interest was the report

CONNELLSVILLE'S REPLY

Which is the more worthy proof—a few words from a Connecticut resident whom we know and respect—or volumes from strangers in distant lands? There can be only one reply: the latter.

Mr. Deibel writes: "I suffered from kidney trouble. I was troubled by hemoemias and rheumatism pains across the small of my back and my kidneys were irregular in action. Dr. Ross's Kidney Pills removed the pains and hemoemias in my back and the action of my kidneys was regularized. I am now in the best of health. I have never had any kidney weakness since I used Dr. Ross's Kidney Pills several years ago."

Price 60¢ at all druggists. Don't simply use for a kidney remedy—use it for a general health tonic. Write to Mr. Deibel at Foster Williams Co., 1105 Broadway, New York City.

Thin Folks Who Would Increase Weight

Simple Directions Easy to Follow.

Thin men and women—that big, hearty, filling dinner you eat last night. What because of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight, for the reason that the food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you haven't got enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilating and building out of waste and need reconstruction. If every way you've tried to put on weight has failed try these simple directions. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating now and eat with every one of these a single Sargol tablet. In two weeks note your weight. Sargol does not of itself make fat but mixing with your food its purpose is to help the digestive organs turn the fat, sugars and starches of what you have eaten into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepare it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. A great deal of this nourishment now passes from thin peoples bodies as waste. Sargol is designed to stop the waste and make the fat produce the contents of the very same meals. You are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is non-injurious, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive.

Leading druggists are authorized to sell it in large boxes forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.—Adv.

ITCHING IRRITATION

Worst Form of Skin Trouble Quickly Relieved by Inexpensive Treatment.
When you suffer with any skin trouble, even though the itching seems unbearable, do not think that it is necessary to use some disgusting, greasy ointment. Try Hoxara, a pure and simple cream, that is guaranteed to contain no grease or acids and which is so clearly that it does not soil the linen.
Its power to instantly relieve any irritation of the skin and make it soft, white and beautiful is almost miraculous.
Not only do minor skin troubles like pimples, blackheads, acne, barber's itch, etc., quickly disappear, but the worst ulcers or sores of salt rheum or eczema are relaxed and healed by this wonderful skin food.
In order that any one may try Hoxara at small expense, A. A. Clarke's Drug Store is selling a liberal-sized jar at 25c, and in addition guarantees to refund the money if the treatment does not do all that is claimed for it.—Adv.

SOME FINE FRUIT

J. V. Fretts Presents Courier Force With Delicately Basket.
J. V. Fretts of Westmoreland county, just beyond Scottsdale, gladdened the hearts of The Courier editorial rooms yesterday afternoon when he walked in bearing a generous basket of fruit under his arm. He announced that the fruit was not to look at but to eat. It consisted of peaches, pears and plums, all delicious.
Mr. Fretts specializes on fruit. His peach orchard consists of nearly 2,000 trees and some of his trees produce peaches measuring nine inches around. He finds a good market for his product in Connelville and other towns in this section.
This was a good fruit year, Mr. Fretts says, except for pears. The blight, he fears, will kill many of his pear trees.

For a Weak Stomach.
There are people right in this vicinity who find it necessary to be very careful about what they eat as they have weak stomachs. Many of them would be very much benefited by the same treatment that cured Mrs. Ernest Phares, of Beaver Dam, Ohio, who writes, "I had a weak stomach and for years certain food disagreed with me. I would feel uncomfortable for hours after eating. I lost weight and became debilitated. Then I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets and the promptness with which they benefited me surprised both myself and my family. They strengthened my digestion and in a short time I was sound and well." For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

SCOTSDALE BOY, ARMY AVIATOR, IS RECOVERING NOW

Lieutenant Joseph C. Morrow Has Good Chance of Living.

HURT IN DROPPING AEROPLANE

Cyrus M. Greenwald, Well Known Citizen, Suffers Severe Injuries in Fall From Ladder; Many Scotsdale Boys and Girls to Enter College.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Sept. 15.—Letters received by Mrs. Hester A. Anderson of this place regarding the condition of her nephew, Lieutenant Joseph C. Morrow, who holds the United States Army Aviation squad at Brownsville, Texas, and who was injured several days ago when his aeroplane, in which he was scouting over Mexico, dropped 200 feet, brings intelligence that the Scotsdale boy is improving. Lieutenant Morrow's brother, Clarence Morrow of Pittsburgh, wrote on Friday morning that the following telegram had reached Mrs. J. Caldwell Morrow: "Lieut. Morrow has shown considerable improvement today. Has not yet coordinated himself. He asked today what happened and where he was. Still sleeps a great deal. In fact, most of the time. Physicians report that he is doing nicely and if he continues to do as well as he has should be quite rational in a few days." Coordination is at fault in order or harmonizing and this, the lieutenant's brain had been unable to do.

On Monday evening another letter was written saying: "Lieutenant Morrow has shown marked improvement the last few days. He has difficulty in coordination, but he is quite rational and about the present. He asked for his mail yesterday, which he read. A few more days ought to see him pretty well recovered from his damaged condition." Mrs. Morrow's daughter, Madeline, wife of W. C. May of Erie, accompanied by her little son, Robert, has been with her mother, but has returned home leaving the child, as there is an epidemic of infantile paralysis in Erie, following the flood.

GETS SCHOLARSHIP. John Hiden, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hiden of Brownsville, graduate of the Scotsdale high school has received an athletic scholarship from Washington & Jefferson College, and entered that institution, his entrance being largely on scholarship since the athletic field was well filled. He played on the high school team and in the Sunday sports place was mentioned for that place on the University team.

HAS BAD FALL. C. M. Greenwald, an aged and respected citizen of Scotsdale, is lying about with a frightfully blackened face and a broken nose, as if he might be one of the most singular men in town, instead of being one of the gentlest. Mr. Greenwald was repairing the roof in a window of one of his properties Monday, being up on a 12-foot ladder set on the porch of H. D. Stough's bakery, when the foot of the ladder slipped out, throwing Mr. Greenwald down with terrific force, breaking his nose and inflicting other bones and eyes. His nose bled seriously from the injury, but he is around again after the physician freed him up.

AT THE FAIR. As has been always customary for the races to send a large delegation of Scotsdale people to Dawson, the first Fayette county fair in a score of years is drawing many people of this section. Children, automobiles and cars are much in demand, and the street cars and buses are also getting a large number. Those who have been present at the fair speak well of it and its attractions.

TO RICHMOND. About 15 of the veterans along

NERVOUS WOMEN

Are troubled with the "blues," anxiety, sleeplessness, and all kinds of pain and distress are sent by the nervous like flying messengers throughout body and limbs. Such feelings may or may not be accompanied by headache or dizziness or fainting-down. The local disorders and run-down condition, if there be any, should be treated with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. "Then the nervous system and the entire womanly make-up feels the tonic effect of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Take this in tablet or liquid form and be a well woman."

Caroline, Pa.—"When I needed to be built up and get strong I used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I was in a nervous and run-down condition. I took it for a period of six months and at the end of the treatment was much stronger and better."—Miss Anna P. Crombitt, 60 E. North St.

Many mothers of families in Pennsylvania have reason to be grateful to the person who recommended Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is put up for the single purpose of curing diseases peculiar to women. Another point in its favor: It is a temperance remedy and does not contain a single drop of alcohol or of any narcotic. Its ingredients are printed on the wrapper. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, dragging-down sensation, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

Why should any woman continue to worry, to lead a miserable existence, when certain help is at hand? What Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for thousands it will do for you. Get it today!

The sluggish liver can be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Biliousness, coated tongue, bad breath, are all cleared up and banished by the use of these tiny sugar-coated granules—purely vegetable and harmless, and they do not cause a habit.

Primary Election Announcements. FOR JUDGE

EDMUND H. REPERT

Probably no candidate for Judge of the Common Pleas Court of Fayette county has ever entered a race with a more nearly unanimous support than that accorded Judge E. H. Reppert this year. The general approval which followed his appointment to the bench by Governor Brumbaugh in a large measure was responsible for his candidacy at this time.

Judge Reppert is widely known throughout the county. During his one term on the bench he made an enviable record as a jurist. His decisions have not only at all times been fair and impartial, but they have at the same time met the approval of the higher courts with commendable frequency.

Judge Reppert was on the bench during Fayette county's epoch of industrial development. Important litigation came before his court. His decisions stood the test of maintaining the best interests of all.

The fact that Judges this year are elected on a non-partisan ballot has enabled men of all parties to pledge their support to Judge Reppert. Party politics have been eliminated from the judicial campaign. The office has been removed from the field of bitter partisan strife. Judge Reppert is the one man of Fayette county able to attract the support of the better element in every party. Judge Reppert's personal and professional career has been an open book. It has been above reproach. He has never carried his politics to the bench.

A vote for Judge Reppert is a vote for the best interests of the community. His record as an upright, useful, public-spirited citizen naturally and properly appeals to the voters of all classes and of all parties. A vote for Reppert carries with it the consciousness of a civic duty well performed.

O. A. B. C. DAY STATE MEETING

Adult Bible Class Workers at Erie October 7.

A Big Street Demonstration on Wheels—500 Automobiles in Line

This is an age of emblems, badges and buttons. Among the many now commonly worn by both men and women is the design of the red button with a white center and is often called the bull's eye. This is the emblem of the Organized Adult Bible Class, commonly expressed as the O. A. B. C. Movement.

The state center of this movement is now located in Pennsylvania, for there are 10,199 such classes to be found in the Sunday Schools of all denominations, with a membership approaching 500,000, and the majority of them are men.

The State Sunday School Convention, to be held in Erie, October 5, 6, 7 and 8, will give recognition to this big feature of modern Sunday School work by devoting several sessions to consider the matter of forming a State-wide federation, for the purpose of united action in matters that mean for moral and religious betterment. Thursday, October 7, will be known as O. A. B. C. Day, and representatives will attend the convention from every section of the State.

Classes connected with Sunday Schools located in the western and northwestern part of the State are planning to send large delegations. Some of these delegations will charter special trains and others will make up automobile parties and go over land to the convention.

One of the unique features planned by the local committee to give this movement distinction is to have a street demonstration on who, what, why and how. For 1500 automobiles to carry the representatives over twenty-five miles of Erie's city streets. The automobiles will be decorated with emblems and mottoes, to call at women. It is expected that fully ten thousand will participate in the demonstration.

"Tipperary" has been playing a good part in calling attention to the gathering of this Bible Class army and the following chorus is being sung in many O. A. B. C. gatherings:

In October golden,
We will gather by the sea,
Way up in the Northern Neck,
The City of Erie,
Pennsylvania Sunday Schools
Will meet—a mighty throng.
So let us make the Boy Scout State
Rally with our Rallying Song.

Chorus
It's a long way 'way up to Erie,
It's a long way to go
It's a long way 'way up to Erie,
For the O. A. B. C. oh!

It's a long, long way 'way up to Erie,
But we'll be right there.

WOMAN WITH BABE ON BATTLE LINES

Outwits Sentries and Sees Her Husband in the Trenches.

WON SYMPATHY OF TROOPS

Her Feet in Slipping by Made More Difficult by Cries of Infant—Hid From Officers and Fed by Men on Guard at the Approaches to the Field of Battle.

"I have been on duty at — for five months and no woman has passed by me," said a soldier the other day in telling of his experiences as a sentry on the outskirts of a village within a stone's throw of the trenches. He described attempts made by wives to visit their soldier husbands in the trenches.

"The only woman who ever outwitted the sentinels along the line was one who had come all the way from Lyons to see her 'tante,' the sentry said. "She was only a mite of a creature. She carried an infant in her arms and appeared and spoke so well to the commissaire militaire at the station that he let her pass. We on picked duty spotted her immediately and knew 'twas some woman who had brought the baby for his father to see. We hated to forbid her passing, but it had to be done. She coaxed, she pleaded, she sobbed, she renounced, but we shook our heads and warned her not to tarry. In tears she did turn back, but she did not mean to give up hope after taking an eighteen hour journey with a crying baby.

Outwits Sentries.
"Sentries are stationed at every crossroads and bypath, but 'twould be impossible to have a fringe of them through the forest. That little woman thought of this. She picked her way through the trees, avoiding clear spots. She hid when she saw soldiers in the distance, and for hours she sneaked along, guided by the nearness of guns. "It was the crying of the baby that gave her away. Soldiers preparing meals at night heard the cries and ran and fetched the two. They gave her nourishment. They hid her under canvas from an officer and others, and just after daylight she had a short interview with her husband. "The soldiers who had helped her to help her out, and she made her way back through the woods just as she had reached the camp. It all leaked out, but then 'twas too late to investigate.

"But it was a good joke on us, considering all the sentinels that guard the line. It only goes to prove that all of us together were not the equal of a woman in craft, cunning, wit and resource.

Weep in Vain.

"The most amusing thing is that of the woman of the lower class who tries by hook or by crook to see her husband. She might get ahead of one sentry, but with several of us at each post we manage to meet her every time. She has explained to the commissaire that she was going on a visit to her aunt, say, at Belfort. When she said 'my tante' no doubt the commissaire smiled, for he has made out hundreds of such condults for such so called nieces. When the train arrives at one station this side of Belfort every one must get out and show papers to the military inspectors, and only soldiers or people who live at Belfort are allowed to proceed. Women must stay in the waiting room and are then returned to their starting point by the first train.

"The women argue, weep, fly in a rage and show all kinds of righteous indignation, but all this is an old story to the guards."

NEW BRITISH NAVAL MEDAL.

Will Be Awarded For Service in Minor
Warlike Operations.

King George of England has sanctioned the establishment of a medal to be known as the naval general service medal.

This will be awarded for service in minor naval warlike operations, whether in the nature of belligerency or of police duty, which may be considered of sufficient importance to justify the award of a medal in cases where no other medal would be appropriate.

It is stated that these medals will be awarded to the officers and men of the warships employed in the operations for the suppression of traffic in arms on the Arabian sea, and the Persian gulf between October, 1909, and the 1st of August, 1914.

To Make New Map of Sky.
It is announced that Harvard college observatory will publish a new photographic map of the entire sky, consisting of plates from negatives taken at Cambridge and Arequipa. This set of charts will, in the sense, supplement the set published some years ago, as the center of each plate in the new series will coincide with the corner of a plate in the former one, thus bringing out many faint stars which failed to appear at the corners of the large field 60 degrees square on account of distortion. The original series comprised fifty-five plates and showed about 1,000,000 stars, ranging down to the 11.5 magnitude.

HE WASN'T MAKING MONEY.

But Still He Had a Good Reason For Congratulating Himself.

He was a renter, and at least every other season he was occupying a different farm. By a friend's advice he had moved the year before into an entirely new field, a dozen miles from his usual haunts, and had not been seen for several months. When the friend did see him at last it was quite by accident, business taking him into the old man's neighborhood. The farmer hailed him from the cornfield and came out to the fence.

"Hello!" said the friend. "Is this your farm?"

"Yes; and I just come over to tell you, sir, that I'll be ready to pay part of that claim of yours before long."

"You must be doing well."

"I think I'm doing just rate, and I'm powerful obliged to you, sir, for bawling me this way."

"I am always glad to help if I can."

"I knowed that, sir, and that's why I come away over here so far from home. It's kinder strange to me, but as long as I am doin' as well as I am I am goin' to stand it."

"Are you making any money?"

"The old man's face brightened perceptibly. "No, I ain't sir," he replied hopefully, "but I'm losin' it slower'n I ever done in my life before."—Argonaut.

WEAR Horner's Clothing

Fascinated.
The woman sitting opposite me in my hotel dining room spoke French to the waitress fluently, but there was an untidiness about her letter "r" that betokened English; and a wateriness about her eyes that I thought betokened liquor. She was used and—for all the world—she was "Sally Camp." She ate her tripe hauntingly. And she ate it voluptuously—not sectioning it with knife or fork, but rolling it omelette wise about her fork like an Italian with macaroni, and I followed each mouthful with my hungry eyes and opened my own mouth slightly each time and thumbed at her dexterity as when I watch a motorcar being lowered into the open hatchway of a ship.—Howard Copland in Yale Review.

PETEY DINK—It Would Appear That He Is a Promising Student of Walking.

By C. A. Voight.

SEFFY
A ROMANCE OF A PENNSYLVANIA FARM
BY JOHN LUTHER LONG
ILLUSTRATIONS BY DON WILSON

The huge flat of the farmer. From that day Sally avoided all public places—and all men. He was nobody—nothing. He fell rapidly into that kind of disrepute which is common to persons with falling reputations. It was to his discredit that he did not leave town, but this his father prevented. Again he took to the cotton woods and the Pollock upland, with perhaps, the dim hope that Sally might again find him there, and that the peeping moon might again interfere on his behalf.

But the moon went through all her phases and then slowly turned her back on him—and Sally never came. In their casual meetings she was loath, once they passed on the road to the store. She was to precisely the door garments he remembered so well—that first day—and as he saw her, he trembled, and then looked up like a mortally wounded animal. She was looking calmly over his head. To the rest of the world she was gay, but ever, though that Sunday night laugh still echoed in her head—kept her maddened. After all, it wasn't worth while to care for even Sally with such a little spirit. Why didn't he fight—kill Sam or somebody? And the whole time Sam sat the store more widely going, that for revenge Sally had deserted her at the church door and that he had first laughed—Sally. This was too much to be passed over, and it was too late for any more.

To Sally's father, who, even in this dire strait, strove for happiness for both—himself, and of course, the pasture. Sally—who sat with more abandoned disregard than she had ever addressed to any one.

You ought to be glad that I do not take revenge on him! It he wasn't so little I would! But he's not worth bothering about. Naked me, did he? I'll show him!

"Why, Sally? What would you do?"

"Put him over my knee and spank him and then put him in the collar!"

"Sally, don't talk like that!" pleaded the old man. "It spiles your voice."

And Sally gave him then and there a rude specimen of how her voice was being spoiled—which I may not reproduce. But it was expressed in anathema. Indeed, others had noticed that her voice, somehow, had lost its soft richness. She was particularly and to the young storekeeper now and he was particularly reckless and drunken. And rumor presently had it that she was known to be drunk with him sometimes!

Sally—said Sally timorously, one day she had wanted to tell her father that she didn't think—she didn't believe—that she knew, said Sally in voice that froze him, "that you are a fool—and I am not fond of fools. Go away! He said I don't like you!"

And then rumor had it that she and Sam were to be married—"for spite!" But, curiously enough, the person most affected by all this was not Sally, nor Sam, nor even her father. It was the young storekeeper, now and he was particularly reckless and drunken. And rumor presently had it that she was known to be drunk with him sometimes!

Gosh a mighty! You goin' to let that molasses tapper set right down on you and never get off? Can't you see that she wants you? It don't matter what she says! Don't you know it's a dare? Alf you going to take a dare? Why, you want to when you was a baby! When you year that durned new lurch of Sally's can't you see that something's wrong? She's drunk! That's what! You think she'll laugh so and drink if she was happy? You was a fool—yes, a durn fool. It's your fault. Go right up to her like a man and say so!"

"I did," said Sally.

"Hah, you did! Alf what she says?"

"She said she knewed it!"

"Well—begone! She's a worse fool. Gather her in and take a fool off her and get it off!" Turning her back on no old man that harks no one—and her guardian yet!

Alas, this was another thing he had done to secure the pasture—made himself her legal guardian!

"He give it up—the guardian! Yessir! She had take her herself! Fool—of course! Rose fools! You wait—she marries that durn molasses tapper if you wait to see fun!"

There was such road agony in the old man's voice that Sally suffered, too.

"Happy, I'm sorry—I ain't no good, I expect I guess I'll go away before the wedding!"

"Wedding—wedding! You goin' to let that wedding go on? And him get the pasture-field? Put him between 'e and the railroad!"

"How can I stop it, pappy?"

"I'm marryin' her, pappy!" said Sally.

"I've not enough, pappy," said Sally.

"They'd lynch me if I tried it again. I guess I'd better go away!"

Quick anger flamed in his father's face at this inopportune submission. And his voice, when he spoke, was harsher than Sally had ever heard it.

"Got enough—not enough—that's all you know! And go away! That's all!"

livious of Sam. "Sam!" she turned upon her husband with command. "Bring the doctor!"

Sam went with satisfactory haste. "Who hurt him?" asked Sally, as if she were ready to slay him who did it.

"I killed him because he wouldn't marry you. You wouldn't marry him! Oh, you devil!"

It was at that instant that the great change in Sally came. She leaped before him into the house and up to Sally's room. When the old man slowly followed she was there—with eyes bent upon Sally's bloody, unconscious face. So she kept her eyes. She did not speak. And when the doctor came she was still there—as at first—unconscious as he, the doctor said.

He was not dead, and presently he breathed again. But his eyes remained closed, and, like that night, when he had drifted from unconsciousness into deep sleep, they put out the light and left him.

When they came again he had disappeared.

XL.
When Spring Came.

That was a cold and lonely winter for the old man. The bay mare stood in the stable and whinnied for Sally. The old house was full of harsh echoes. Its spirit seemed to have gone. Sally's father knew now what a rare thing it was—and what a joy—his creature Sally had been.

The ground was hard to fill. And often he thought about what he had said of Sally's mother.

Then he would tell up the steep stair to the garret—he had become quite feeble—and take out of an old German chest a darning-needle of her with Sally in her arms. And some times he would cry over it until his beard was wet.

God bless you, my little boy, he would sometimes say, that you cared for her more than I did. You never called her no names.

"I didn't know I could be so mean to the dead—who don't deserve it and can't talk back. And, God a mighty! If any one's to be called names, it's me—not her nor you, Sally, nor you! For I expect I'm a murderer!"

And sometimes, when his loneliness was too hard to bear, he would go out and sit for hours and talk to the old bay mare about Sally. He found the quite understood, and I do, too.

When the spring came he plowed alone. And this was hardest of all. To plow around and around his vast fields with no one to meet in the other furrow—no one to talk, to smile, to laugh to—then, when noon came, to sit under the shade of some tree redolent with memories of the pretty little boy, where he and Sally had sat, from his childhood to his manhood, and eat the food which he chose!

Oh, if he could only have laughed—at himself, at Sally, at the mare, at anybody or anything! If he could only have laughed!

And he knew that every animal on the place wondered and hungered for little Sally, and questioned him with pathetic eyes as to where she had sat, from his childhood to his manhood, and eat the food which he chose!

Oh, if he could only have laughed—at himself, at Sally, at the mare, at anybody or anything! If he could only have laughed!

XL.
The Kiss Sally's.

One day he went up to the three-covered house on the Hill of Delight, with a bundle of papers in his hand.

See you, Sally, he said smilingly, here's your papers. I give up the guardianship. You can get another one if you don't care for it. I don't keep a durn who I'm tied if it wasn't for you—Sally would be able to!

Sally did nod her head.

"Yes," she said, so humbly that he relented a little.

I got to do it. I ain't no account no more. I ought to take a guardian myself. And please making such a fuss—you ain't treated by right—no, you ain't! I guess I had better not be mixed in. They say that you married a drunkard, and killed—a man—and got to be a drunkard yourself. But I know better 'bout one thing. I killed him. Yet they say that you married Sam. You tell me to Sally—Sally—Sally!

He went on headlessly till he knew that Sally was sobbing. He raised her face and looked into it curiously and saw for the first time that pathetic weakness of which, also people began to talk.

"Sally," he said then, "you not well?"
